THE South Carolina Gazette.

From MONDAY May 27th, to MONDAY June 3d, 1751.

The following LETTER from his Grace the Duke of BEDFORD, one of his Majesty's Principal Secretaries of State, to his Excellency the Governor of this Province, is inserted here by his Excellency's Direction, viz.

WHITEHALL, 1st FEBRUARY, 1750-1.

SIR,

MR. Keene, his majesty's ambassador extraordinary and plenipotentiary to the king of Spain, having on the 5th day of October last past, N. S. signed and concluded at Madrid, a treaty with his Catholick majesty's minister plenipotentiary, and his majesty being willing that the same should be made known to all his trading subjects, has ordered the said treaty to be printed, and has commanded me to transmit to you a copy thereof, with his pleasure, that you do cause the same to be made publick and observed throughout your government, to the end that they may reap the benefit of his majesty's unwearied endeavours, for procuring them such commercial advantages, and avoid giving the least ground for such complaint as may, in any wise, interrupt the good harmony, so happily re-established between the two crowns.

I am, SIR,

Your most Obedient humble Servant,

Gov. GLEN. BEDFORD.

COPY of the TREATY concluded and signed at Madrid, on the 5th of October N. S. 1750.

WHEREAS by the 16th article of the treaty of Aix-la-Chapelle, it has been agreed between their Britannick and Catholick majesties, that the treaty of the Assiento for the commerce of negroes, and the article of the annual ship, for the four years of non-enjoyment should be confirmed to Great-Britain, upon the same foot, and upon the same conditions, as they ought to have been executed before the late war; and the respective ambassadors of their said majesties having agreed, by a declaration signed between them on the 13-24 June 1748, to regulate, at a proper time and place, by a negociation between ministers named on each side for that purpose, the equivalent which Spain should give in consideration of the non-enjoyment of the years of the said Assiento of negroes, and of the annual ship granted to Great Britain, by the 10th article of the preliminaries signed at Aix-la Chapelle, on the 19-30 April 1748.

Their Britannick and Catholick majesties, in order to fulfil the said engagements of their respective ministers, and to strengthen and perfect more and more a solid and lasting harmony between the two crowns, have agreed to make the present particular treaty between themselves, without the intervention or participation of any third power: so that each of the contracting parties acquires by virtue of the cessions which that party makes, a right of compensation from the other reciprocally: And they have named their ministers plenipotentiaries for that purpose, viz. his Britannic majesty, Benjamin Keene, Esq; his minister plenipotentiary to his Catholic majesty; and his Catholic majesty, Don Joseph de Carvajal and Lancaster, minister of state, and one of his council of state; who, after having examined the points in question, have agreed on the following articles.

I. His Britannick Majesty yields to his Catholick majesty his right to the enjoyment of the Assiento of negroes, and of the annual ship, during the four years stipulated by the 16th article of the treaty of Aix la-Chapelle.

II. His Britannick majesty, in consideration of a compensation of 100,000 l. sterling, which his Catholick majesty promises and engages to cause to be paid, either at Madrid, or London, to the royal Assiento company, within the term of three months at latest, to be reckoned from the day of the signing of this treaty, yields to his Catholick majesty, all that may be due to the said company for balance of accounts, or arising in any manner whatsoever from the said Assiento; so that the said compensation shall be esteemed and looked upon as a full and entire satisfaction on the part of his Catholick majesty, and shall extinguish from this present time, for the future, and for ever, all right, pretension, or demand, which might be formed in consequence of the said Assiento or annual ship, directly or indirectly, on the part of his Britannick majesty, or on that of the said company.

III. The Catholick king yields to his Britannick majesty all his pretensions or demands in consequence of the said Assiento and annual ship, as well with regard to the articles already liquidated, as to those which may be easy or difficult to liquidate; so that no mention can ever be made of them hereafter, on either side.

IV. His catholick majesty consents, that the British subjects shall not be bound to pay higher, or other duties, or upon other evaluations for goods which they shall carry into or out of the different ports of his Catholick majesty, than those paid on the same goods in the time of Charles II. king of Spain, settled by the cedulas and ordonnances of that king, or those of his predecessors: And altho' the favour or allowance called Pie del Fardo be not founded upon any royal ordonnance, nevertheless his Catholick majesty declares, wills and ordains, that it shall be observed now, and for the future, as an inviolable law; and all the above mentioned duties shall be exacted and levied, now and for the future, with the same advantages and favours to the said subjects.

V. His Catholick majesty allows the said subjects to take and gather salt in the island of Tortudos, without any hindrance whatsoever, as they did in the time of the said king Charles II.

VI. His Catholick majesty consents, that the said subjects shall not pay any where, higher or other duties than those which his Catholick majesty's subjects pay in the same place.

VII. His Catholick majesty grants that the said subjects shall enjoy all the rights, priviledges, franchises, exemptions, and immunities whatsoever, which they enjoy'd before the last war, by virtue of cedulas or royal ordonnances, and by the articles of the treaty of peace and commerce made at Madrid in 1667; and the said subjects shall be treated in Spain, in the same manner as the most favoured nation, and consequently, no nation shall pay less duties upon wool, and other merchandizes which they shall bring into, or carry out of Spain by land, than the said subjects shall pay upon the same merchandizes, which they shall bring in or carry out by sea. And all the rights, privileges, franchises, exemptions and immunities, which shall be granted or permitted to any nation whatever, shall also be granted and permitted to the said subjects; and his Britannick majesty consents, that the same be granted and permitted to the subjects of Spain, in his Britannic majesty's kingdoms.

VIII. His Catholick majesty promises to use all possible endeavours on his part, to abolish all innovations which may have been introduced into commerce; and to have them forborne for the future; his Britannick majesty likewise promises to use all possible endeavours to abolish all innovations, and to forbear 'em for the future.

IX. Their Britannick and Catholick majesties confirm, by the present treaty, the treaty of Aix-la-Chapelle, and all the other treaties therein confirmed, in all their articles and clauses, excepting those which have been derogated from by the present treaty: As likewise the treaty of commerce concluded at Utrecht in 1713, those articles excepted, which are contrary to the present treaty, which shall be abolished, and of no force, and namely, the three articles of the said treaty of Utrecht, commonly called explanatory.

X. All the reciprocal differences, rights, demands and pretensions, which may have subsisted between the two crowns of Great-Britain and Spain, in which no other nation whatever has any part, interest, or right of intervention, being thus accommodated and extinguished by this particular treaty; the two said most serene kings engage themselves mutually to the punctual execution of this treaty of reciprocal compensation, which shall be approved and ratified by their said majesties, and the ratifications exchanged, in the term of six weeks, to be reckoned from the day of its signing, or sooner if it can be done.

In witness whereof, we the above mentioned ministers plenipotentiary, that is to say, Benjamin Keene, Esq; in the name of his Britannick majesty, and Don Joseph de Carvajal and Lancaster, in the name of his Catholick majesty, by virtue of our full powers, which we have mutually communicated to each other, have signed these presents, and have caused the seals of our arms to be put thereto. Done at Madrid the 5th of October 1750. N. S.

(L. S.) BENJAMIN KEENE.
